How to restore peace on the planet?

Thank you Thomas.

I believe that WIF is doing a great job in the direction of peace. It is perhaps the only hope for humanity.

We must ensure that the enlightened minds of the planet come together to reverse a situation that at this moment in history appears increasingly dark.

Spirituality has been lacking, the values that can lead to true peace on the planet are missing.

I have already spoken of a past in which around the Black Sea there were Celtic tribes who lived in peace, while each maintaining its own peculiar characteristics. It was the first experience of European Union ante litteram.

According to what is handed down, the first settlement of the populations that will later be identified in the Celtic culture was located in the area where the Black Sea now exists. According to myths this area represented the ancient cradle of humanity, an archaic hearth that had seen the splendor of a great civilization rise.

But now around the Black Sea there is only death and destruction.

Some reflections on the situation in Italy.

Obviously, public opinion is impressed by the war and frightened by possible planetary developments.

Also because Italians are constantly bombarded by the media in which nothing else is talked about.

After two years of a pandemic, and now the war between Russia and Ukraine, most people are frightened and even among the young there is a confusion and a crisis of values.

Many young people go into depression, so much that the Italian Minister of Health has issued a bonus for the psychologist.

However, there is a range of intellectuals who seem critical of the situation and point out that the war in Ukraine is not the only war on the planet. There are at least 60 wars in the world.

According to polls, most Italians do not agree on sending weapons to Ukraine, contrary to the intentions of Prime Minister Draghi.

As for my association, Ecospirituality Foundation, we are activating a project in order to establish a World Ecospirituality Day to be included in the UN world days. In this we are supported by members of the Italian parliament.

We have recently created an event in Rome, at the Campidoglio, with the participation of politicians, scientists, writers, actors, which was the first official step towards this project.

We believe that ecospirituality is a way to create conditions for peace on the planet. Ecospirituality combines several themes: respect for the environment, for animals, spiritual contact with Mother Earth and with Nature.

We believe that it is a revolutionary philosophy and that it can represent a solution for this dark period we are experiencing.

As for the UN, I also think, like you and Marko, that we must not oppose each other as the UN represents a form of moral guarantee. It is true that there are many contradictions in the UN, but within it there are truly idealistic and sensitive key people.

I have read the draft declaration for peace between the Palestinian and Israeli people and I absolutely agree, it is a truly revolutionary declaration.

I am convinced that we are going in the right direction, and that the World Intellectual Forum, with the support of all the associations that are part of it, is the only solution to restore peace on the planet.
